

Training

“TRAINING THE TRAINERS” HEALTH PSYCHOLOGY

DAY 1: DECEMBER 2nd 2015 TEACHING INTERVENTION SKILLS

Learn about therapeutic skills and methods of teaching them using real-world clinical case studies. Consider the current applied content in your course and identify opportunities to integrate Health Psychology therapeutic practice skills within the existing structures.

DAY 2: DECEMBER 3rd 2015 ASSESSING INTERVENTION SKILLS

Learn about methods to assess intervention skills and professional behaviours. Develop techniques to improve trainees' competency to practice. Consider how you could implement changes within your course.

Getting your trainees ahead in the healthcare employment market.

WHO ARE SCCH CONSULTING?

Sasha Cain and Claire Hallas (SCCH) are experienced practitioner health psychologists, with 30 years combined experience in the NHS, private healthcare and academia.

ARE YOU TEACHING ON A UK HEALTH PSYCHOLOGY COURSE?

“Training the Trainers” events support Health Psychology course staff to review their current training within the context of applied practice skills and to develop new methods of teaching and assessing stage 1 and stage 2 applied interventions skills.

The outcomes of this 2-day course are for you to deepen your understanding of therapeutic practice, be able to develop clinically relevant course materials and improve your methods of training and assessing practice skills.

This will lead to improved student outcomes. Increasing their practice skills, their confidence to practice and their employability in applied settings.

Who are these events for?

- Academic staff wanting to enhance their understanding of how to apply health psychology knowledge and professional competences in everyday applied practice.
- Staff wanting to improve trainees' personal therapeutic skills, judgement skills and applied communication skills to improve their ability to secure employment in healthcare services.
- Academic staff with limited experience of working with individual patients in a therapeutic health service.

Meet other trainers, develop new teaching skills & enhance your course's reputation

Venue: BPS London

To book your place go to: www.scchconsulting.com